THINKING ALOUD.

A Ruse Which Roused Lord Dudley and Formed a Friendship.

One of the earls of Dudley, who was addicted to the practice of thinking aloud, found himself in a very awkward predicament on a certain occasion. He was to spend the evening at the house of a friend and ordered his carriage early, as he had a long drive back to his own home.

When the hour arrived the carriage was not forthcoming. Seeing that Lord Dudley was considerably annoyed by the delay, one of the guests, whose way homeward lay past his lordship's house, politely offered him a seat in his carriage. The gentleman was almost a stranger to Lord Dudley, but the offer was accepted.

The drive did not prove a very sociable one. Lord Dudley took his seat and immediately relapsed into silence, his thoughts apparently engrossed by some unpleasant subject. Presently he began to speak in a low but distinctly audible tone of voice, and his companion, to his astonishment, heard him say:

"I'm very sorry I accepted his offer. I don't know the man. It was civil certainly, but the worst is I suppose I must ask him to dinner."

Silence followed this bit of audible thinking. His lordship was unaware that he had betrayed his thoughts and was, probably still meditating upon the same unpleasant subject when the voice of his companion broke the stillness.

Apparently this stranger was afflicted with the same malady from which his lordship suffered, for he exactly imitated Lord Dudley's tone as he said:

"Perhaps he'll think I did it to make his acquaintance. Why, I would have done the same to any farmer on his estate. I hope he won't ask me to dinner, for I shan't accept his invitation."

Lord Dudley's abstraction was all gone. He listened to the other's words, immediately comprehending the joke against himself, and frankly offered his hand to his companion, making many apologies for his involuntary rudeness.

The stranger proved magnanimous, and from that night the two became fast friends.

THE TAXIDERMIST.

He Stretches Animal Skins Over Plaster of Paris Forms.

Recently a prominent taxidermist of St. Louis was taking a party of visitors through his establishment. He had some very rare specimens of big game fish, both of the sea and river, besides a large collection of birds of every clime about the walls.

"Is that stuffed, too?" asked a lady, indicating the lifelike form of a small pet dog which sat motionless upon the hearth.

The taxidermist frowned and returned very indignantly:

"Madam, we do no stuffing here. We stretch our hides over plaster of paris forms. The day of stuffing is past, and no up to date establishment does it."

The party was taken upstairs, through the rooms where the real taxidermy is done. They had expected to see hides being crammed full of sawdust, shavings and perhaps hair. No such thing was seen, however, and in place of this were men and boys molding out the forms of deer, antelope, fish and other kinds of animals in the smooth white plaster. This is done very much in the same way as the terra cotta cornices are molded to grace the corners of buildings. The hides after going through the cleaning process are stretched tightly over the plaster form, which indeed is more lasting than the old fashioned manner of stuffing them.

"Even specimens of fish are treated in this manner," resumed the taxidermist, "and you may easily see how a skin would retain its shape a great deal longer over the hard, smooth surface of the plaster than if a softer material were crammed into it, which if improperly done will bulge and last but a short time."—Exchange.

Lincoln's Last Law Case.

Lincoln tried his last case in Chicago. It was the case of Jones versus Johnson in April and May, 1860, in the United States circuit court before Judge Drummond. The case involved the title to land of very great value, the accretion on the shore of Lake Michigan. During the trial Judge Drummond and all the counsel on both sides, including Lincoln, dined together at the house of Isaac N. Arnold.

At the conclusion of the dinner this toast was proposed: "May Illinois furnish the next president of the United States." It was drunk with great enthusiasm by the friends of both Lincoln and Douglas. — Chicago Record-Herald.

The Wary Crow.

The crow is useful in killing mice, snakes, lizards and frogs and is a splendid scavenger. He is quite wary, will always flee from a man with a gun, but pays little attention to the ordinary pedestrian. These birds are gregarious in their habits and make their large, untidy nests at the tops of trees. They come in flocks to the sleeping grove, sit around on the ground, and when all are assembled they rise simultaneously and scramble for nests. Crows mate for life.

Still His Daughter.

Matchmaking

By FRANK H. SWEET

Copyrighted, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

Ensconced behind his flower boxes on the veranda, Tom Errett could look into the neighboring garden and watch her; for she, too, sought the cool and sweetness of her garden. On Tuesday evening she espied him. What man could resist that smile? There was a silent, perhaps unconscious, invitation in it that brought Tom to his feet and to the wall.

"Good evening, Mr. Errett," said the girl in white.

"Good evening, Miss Smith," answered the man on the wall.

"You look altogether too comfortable. I think we shall have to follow suit and build a veranda.

"Don't. Use mine," was on his tongue's end, but he only responded, "It is comfortable." Then the informality of the situation was too much for him. "Won't you come over and try it?" he pleaded.

"I'm afraid the wall is too much for me," she said, smiling demurely.

Tom was a man who never turned back, his hand once on the plow. He dropped quickly to the ground, on her side of the fence.

"I'm dreadfully lonely," was his apology.

On Wednesday she was not visible, and there was a void upon the earth. On Thursday and Friday things resumed the new glamour. On Saturday the moon was a shadowy crescent above the tree tops. The stars were still veiled in sunset mists; the air was odorous with the scent of mignonette and sweet peas. Tom, expectancy written in every feature, waited for the flutter of white amid the flowers, the sound of a voice which was like no other voice he had ever heard. At the first signal of her approach, he stepped boldly on to the wall.

"Special delivery, sir," said a servant's voice behind him. He opened the letter, conscious that her eyes were upon him. It was from the wife of a college friend inviting him to spend Sunday at their country place. He glanced at his watch. There was barely time to catch the last train. Then his eyes fell upon her.

"Answer, sir?"

"No—yes—wait a moment."

His eyes still sought hers.

"Can I help you?" she asked sweetly.

"Will you?" he flashed eagerly. "May I go to church with you tomorrow?"

The corners of her mouth drew together in a wise little smile, for Tom had not impressed her as being a churchman.

"Yes, but it's early mass."

Tom did not flinch.

"Thanks," he said quietly, and, scribbling a few words, he handed them to the man:

To Mrs. Herndon Roberts, Holly House, Columbia Heights, N. J.:
Another engagement. Impossible to go. Awfully sorry. THOMAS ERRETT.

To Mrs. Herndon Roberts, Holly House, Columbia Heights, N. J.:
Your letter miscarried and came too late. Greatly disappointed. Will run up next Saturday if convenient to you.
AUGUSTA SMITH.

Herndon Roberts, returning from the Columbia links, found his wife staring at the two telegrams with disappointed eyes.

"Fate is against us," she groaned. "Tom has another engagement—here's his wire, and another from Augusta says that my letter miscarried and reached her too late. I shall write them both special delivery now."

Going to her desk, Mrs. Roberts penned the following notes:

Dear Tom—Don't make any engagement for next Saturday or Sunday. If you have one, break it, do, Tom, dear. We are going to try the new links. I can't think of any stronger inducement. Take the 3:10 by way of the Cortlandt street ferry. Hastily, but cordially yours.
AGNES ROBERTS.

My Dear Augusta—Can't understand my letter miscarrying, but I won't cry over spilled milk, although I was tempted to. Delighted at the prospect of having you with us this coming Saturday. Take the 3:10 train by way of the Cortlandt street ferry. Always affectionately yours.
AGNES ROBERTS.

The gatekeeper at the ferry shut Tom from joining the hurrying crowd a dozen yards in advance.

"Sorry, sir, but you're too late," he said. "There'll be another boat in a few minutes."

Tom, suit case in hand, gazed helplessly at the closed gate.

"Too late to connect with the 3:10," he said. "This boat would have made it." But his tone was listless.

The official eye still regarded him coldly. "Sorry, sir," he repeated. "Where were you bound for?"

"Columbia Heights."

"No more trains for the Heights today, sir."

"Where's the nearest telegraph office?" asked Tom, striving to hide the grin of delight which spread over his face as the man spoke.

He sent his telegram to the Robertses, jumped into a cab and drove home—elated. Disappointment awaited him however. The house next door was suspiciously quiet.

"Cook says they've gone away," ventured his man as Tom sat down to his solitary dinner. "Claret, sir?"

"For how long?" asked Tom faintly.

"All summer, sir. Miss Smith has went to the Hot Springs. Rheumatics terrible, sir."

"Hot Springs—rheumatics?" repeated Tom, regardless of his English in his excitement.

"I suppose, sir, that when folks gets old they feel a bit shaky, sir," the man explained.

"Old?" roared Tom. "What do you mean?"

"The cook said Miss Smith would be sixty-four come next September, sir."

"Of whom are you speaking, Jones?"

"My reference is to the maiden party, sir, Miss Smith, Mrs. Smith's sister-in-law."

Tom felt his face go white. He stared stonily at his plate.

"And she let me call her Miss Smith!" he murmured, a remark which, if his man heard, he gravely ignored.

For a week Tom lingered about his veranda and garden, desolate and discontented, and when a summons came from Holly House on Friday morning he blessed the fates. Holly House, at least, would have no haunting memories of her presence. Mrs. Roberts' message ran:

Third call to Holly House. Will you come Saturday?

His reply was brief and expressive:

I will if I have to walk. TOM.

Having secured his seat half an hour before the train left, Tom was deep in his paper when the train boys began to cry their wares:

"Popular books of the day! Papers, magazines!"

"Give me Harper's," said a quiet voice from the seat behind.

Tom whirled.

"Mrs. Smith!" he cried.

"I thought you looked familiar," smilingly, "but backs are often deceiving. Won't you join me?"

She made room at her side.

"How much of a ride do we have together?" asked Tom, having migrated. "My stop is Columbia Heights."

"How nice," was her answer. "You can help me with my luggage."

"This is providential," he cried.

"Where do you stay?"

"Holly House."

"What!"

"Mrs. Herndon Roberts' place. I'm to be there over Sunday. I met her in Europe three years ago, soon after my husband's death."

Tom had opened his mouth to speak, but the transfiguration of his face at her last word was too great for speech. The mouth closed without a sound. It was she who broke the silence.

"It is strange that they have never said anything to either of us about the other," she mused.

"Where were you last Saturday, Sunday, Monday?" demanded Tom.

"At Holly House. Were you asked?"

"I was. I missed my train."

"I was to have gone a week before, but my invitation miscarried," she said.

"Do you remember the special delivery I received three weeks ago? I was standing on the wall talking to you when it came."

She nodded.

"It was an invitation from Mrs. Roberts," he said simply.

Then they looked at each other unsmilingly, for the situation had suddenly assumed prophetic significance.

"Do you know, I think they have been trying to bring us together," Tom announced presently. Her hand lay on the cushion beside him. He put his own over it firmly. "Shall we let them?" he whispered.

"It is too good a joke to spoil," she murmured, blushing exquisitely. "Do you think you can keep a straight face when we are introduced?"

"Columbia Heights!" yelled the conductor.

Beau Brummel.

Brummel went to prison for debt, but came out again to resume his fopperies. His friends made him a small allowance of £120 per annum, equal at Caen to £360, but he could not be expected to live on such a pittance. When he had not 4 francs in the world he would order boot polish at 5 francs a bottle from Paris and call the tradesman who supplied it "a scoundrel" for venturing to ask for his money. In the end his intellect gave way. He lost his memory and much of his little mind. He grew slovenly and careless, yet to the last clung to his eau de cologne and some other luxuries. Finally, his mind all gone, he was removed to a charity hospital, being now reduced to the utmost impoverishment and content to change his linen once a month instead of three times a day, as of old. Here he died under the care of sisters of charity on March 30, 1840. Thus ended the striking career of perhaps the most worthless fop whom history records, his death being a fitting termination to his useless life.

Mr. and Mrs. Robin.

Cock robin is a great nuisance when the nest is undergoing repairs or has to be rebuilt, for he everlastingly bothers the lady robin while she goes about her fine art of nest building. Does he ever assist in the good work? Not he. He will not soil his pretty bill with one bit of lint or moss, or anything necessary for the nest. After the little fellows are hatched he becomes a genuine old he hen, and will hover about the nest while the lady is away for worms for her young. He may once in a while forget his lordliness and bring a worm for his lady, but as for food for his offspring, the fuzzy little fellows would starve were they to depend upon the father robin for food. He seldom bothers about the little ones' first flight attempts, and will sit perched handily by while mamma tackles the delightful task. But let danger approach the young or the mate, and lo and behold! Mr. Robin becomes a genuine fighter, and will draw near to the jaws of death boldly and without hesitation.—London Telegraph.

Fault of the Sex.

"John, look at that yacht," said Mrs. Stubb, who was leaning over the rail. "Just see how clumsily she tacks."

"What is the name?" queried Mr. Stubb from the steamer chair.

"Edith."

"Well, no wonder. Anything feminine always tacks clumsily."—Houston Post.

THE SPECTER SWIMMER.

A Legend of the Sea That Still Appeals to Sailors.

The sailor as a class still holds fast to the superstitions that have been his especial heritage throughout all ages. To him the sea is still peopled with phantoms. Men there are still who sail the sea believing in the power of the Swimmer, men who believe in the Walrus of unholy fame and in the existence of the specter bark Lucy to be seen at any time dodging in and out of the creeks and bays of the South Carolina coast. This is the tale of the Swimmer:

Near Cape Finisterre there lived a fisher maiden in days when the world asked fewer questions than now, and with her lived her fisher sweetheart. On their wedding night, runs the yarn, smugglers came down on their village, a thieving, drunken band. When they left, having done all the damage they could, the fisher maiden's sweetheart had disappeared, whether with them or through them was never known. Instead of pining uselessly, as would most women, she dressed herself in men's clothes and started to find him, dead or alive.

For years she wandered over the earth and ocean, and, though her disguise was penetrated several times and she passed through a host of troubles which vary with each telling, she succeeded in keeping up her hunt. Finally after escaping from an English prison the vessel she was on was lost at sea, and the simple Breton fishermen enshrined her in a legend which has her forever swimming the seas still in search of the man she loved and hailing each craft she nears. A sailor, be he Yankee or Portuguese, matter of fact in all things else or grossly superstitious, believes firmly that if you hear the hail of the Swimmer on a dark night at sea and answer it not woe follows swiftly.—New York Herald.

The Perfect Servant.

The thoroughly trained English servant is in his way the most perfect kind of servant to be found anywhere, and in his station and for his duties he is not to be matched in the world. Where will you find any men so competent in their work, so completely trained and apparently emotionless in manner, so punctual, so clean, so smart, as an English butler, coachman, footman or valet? Certainly not on the continent of Europe, in the United States, in Canada or in Australia.—Country Life.

Metals and Metaphors.

"It is most amazing," said a metallurgist, "how the world relies on metals for its metaphors and similes. Thus an orator is silver tongued or golden mouthed. An explorer is bronzed by African suns. A resolute chap has an iron will. A sluggard moves with leaden feet. An ostrich has a copper lined stomach. A millionaire has tin. A swindler is as slippery as quicksilver. A borrower has brass."—New York Press.

Mamma Remembered.

Papa (enraged)—Well, Constantia, daughter, I've never in all my life seen as soft, green, unsophisticated, spoony an idiot as young Puddington. Mamma (emphatically)—I have!—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A son never realizes how much his own father knew until he starts to advise children of his own. — Florida Times-Union.

Greenwich Observatory.

In the year 1675 King Charles II. of England founded the royal observatory at Greenwich in order that astronomical observations might be made for the assistance of sailors. The history of the observatory has been the history of chronology and of this practical side of astronomy. Its work and its standards have become distinctly international. The meridian of Greenwich now determines the longtitude of the world.—Exchange.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Scudder, M. D., Author of Specific Medicines; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., Med. Dept. Univ. of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authors and many others endorsing, in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

Thoughts at Random.

THE SUMMER vacation season is a real observation time of human nature and having observed we make the following deduction: That people in general exhibit rare characteristics when on their outings and that boarding house keepers and resort proprietors are real martyrs and diplomats.

The summer boarder goes to a resort with his mind made up to be critical. He rarely ever is blessed with the faculty of making up his mind to like the accommodations. Beside this type of person with this state of mind are those who go to the country for perfect quiet and rest, and in decided antithesis to these are the merrymakers who want jollity and good times. There are the women who go to show off their fashionable gowns and, again in contrast, those who had hoped for no style but a chance to lounge about in kimonas and dressing sacks. The semi-invalids deplore the temptation to drink highballs which follows as a matter of course when there is a bar in the place. Yet there are others who would not stay if the resort was run on the water wagon plan.

It is up to the proprietor to please all these different people with their variegated tastes. The ones who succeed have a colossal gift, for the art of pleasing the summer resort trade is no easy matter.

Idleness makes people more critical and gives them more time to imagine discomforts than hard work and occupation ever could. We are not so critical of our comforts when busy or so conscious of little defects, but when we expect to be catered to and have nothing to do but criticize the process then it is a sorry day for our host. The most pronounced and aggravated type are composed of people who have few comforts at home but expect the most exacting treatment at the summer resort where it seems that their new mode of living must exalt them to a pedestal and all on the place must come forward and pay them homage. These people file more kicks than the millionaire tourist.

The summer resort is necessary to our existence and the haven of rest and recreation for the fagged out city folks but they should think of things from the proprietors standpoint and be considerate. Don't try and do lest you be done.

CYNICISM is not often well founded but is the outgrowth of a pessimistic mind state. A poem in a recent magazine number, has for its theme the weaving of a spider's web which was ever swept away and the ultimate advice to the weaver to build the web in the hole of the charity box where it would remain undisturbed. Charity, however, is not such an unusual quality of the human race of to-day. Much philanthropic work is being done and many acts of kindness transpire during each hour of the year. The response in the case of the San Francisco disaster from every quarter and from every imaginable source, humble and high, demonstrates that charity is by no means an obsolete quality. The number of beggars who thrive in our big cities also goes to show that the human heart may still be touched. It really seems a fact that of all the Christian qualities charity seems to be most predominent for it is present even in those who stifle or kill the other kindred qualities. The reputation of benevolence is coveted by all men. This is the charity which we commonly call by that name. There is a charity, however, which has not to do with dollars or cents but is something of the heart and soul. This is less common but it enriches the sprit of the world. As Ruskin says "it will lie lovingly over all the faults and rough places of the human heart, as the snow from heaven does over the hard and black and broken mountain rocks, following their forms truly, and yet catching light for them to make them fair, and that must be be a steep and unkindly crag indeed which it cannot cover." This is the charity which condones those who know not charity in any sense.

AFTER THE sacrifice of many lives on the altar of the deer hunting sport, agitation for some stringent measures to prevent those awful mistakes which occur every season are being made by followers of the game.

The best suggestion yet made is that which regulates the hunting costume and provides for a uniform which, when seen in the underbrush, cannot possibly be mistaken for the hide of a deer even by the most excited shooter.

If the law would provide something of this kind to protect hunters in the open season it would be a far greater act of humanity than to seek further to protect the game. It would also be a very picturesque feature, during the hunting season, to see deer parties gaily dressed in hunting coats and caps starting out on the chase. It might not be as easy to kill the deer, for the wary animals are quick to distinguish that which does not harmonize with the colors of the landscape, but it would prevent many an unfortunate incident in our hunting seasons.

PASS THAT NEW SALOON ORDINANCE.

City Trustees Hold Important Session — Vigorous Discussion of Liquor Problem.

The City Trustees held their regular meeting Wednesday night and the routine was enlivened by a lively discussion of the liquor ordinance, which came up for final reading and passage. After a reading and approval of the minutes the following bills were allowed and ordered paid:

P. Snyder, services	$ 5 00
J. A. Albertson, salary, etc.	20 00
H. Castagnasso, gravel	4 00
L. Emparan, water,	15 00
V. Jensen, street work	5 00
A. Pinelli, sprinkling	105 00
H. Pooler, services	12 00
Sonoma Valley Co., lights	36 40
Henshaw, Buckley Co., cart. etc.	477 50

The street lighting contract was then renewed for one month and the clerk ordered to advertise for bids for the city printing, bids to be in on Saturday, Aug. 17th at 8 o'clock.

Several amendments to Ordinance No. 90, the liquor ordinance, were then introduced by Trustee Bates. They were adopted and the ordinance with added amendments read for the third time. The ordinance fixes the license at $60 semi-annually and makes it a misdemeanor to sell liquor to the intoxicated or to allow women to loiter or remain on premises where liquor is sold. It was vigorously protested by a personal representation of those interested and by a widely signed petition which read as follows:

To the Honorable Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma:

GENTLEMEN: We, the undersigned business men of Sonoma, who are directly interested in the matter, hereby enter a vigorous protest against the passage of Ordinance No. 90, the so-called anti-liquor ordinance, as being directly hostile to our business interests in particular and the future prosperity of Sonoma in general.

We look upon the passage of this ordinance as a direct blow at the capital invested in the hotel, saloon, wine and other interests in Sonoma and a species of special legislation that will work much harm and do no good.

There is no direct demand for reform of this nature in this town. Sonoma is one of the most quiet and orderly places in the State of California There are no gambling hells here; no houses of prostitution; little or no drunkenness; and less crime has been committed here the past ten years, and fewer arrests made than in any other place of its size in the State.

We repeat there is no demand for this legislation here from the people who pay the taxes to run Sonoma City's government and those on the outside have no right to dictate to us how this town should be conducted.

The city lies in the heart of a wine producing and brandy-making community without which there would be little prosperity here, and legislation by your honorable body against the interests above mentioned is likewise detrimental to the interests of our grape growers and wine makers.

Your petitioners would furthermore set forth that they represent not only twenty or more business enterprises in Sonoma but also are large real estate holders here and heavy taxpayers, providing through license and taxes on the property valuations more than one-half the revenue for supporting the city government, and we consider that we have certain rights which your honorable board, who are but public servants at the most, are bound to respect.

For these and many more reasons we protest against the passage of the ordinance in question.

Sonoma Brewery by John Steiner, F. D. Bose, S. V. Ice Co., E. C Campbell, Soda Works, J. W. Kelly, Boyes Mineral Water, Enrico Eraldi, S. Ciucci, hotel, James C. O'Rourke, hotel, C. Marzo, hotel, M. Bionchini, hotel, Zugnoni Ambrosini, J. Vincent, hotel, Henry Pellissier, resort, California Brewery Association by T. Fouts, M. Muldry, P. Yenni, saloon, A. Beretta, G. Mazza, saloon, Louis O'Done, saloon, R. Elder, O. K., Jas. L. Modini, F. Quarlaroli, hotel, F. Canobbia, A. Pinelli."

Trustees Breitenbach and McDonell claimed that the ordinance was framed up unbeknown to them and hinted at the dark mysteries of the solid three who had it drafted.

Trustee Bates declared he did not want to work a hardship on any one but that he thought the present methods were inviting prohibition whereas it might be satisfactorily adjusted now. He did not claim to be a reformer but expressed himself in favor of the proposed legislation. The vote for the passage of the ordinance was finally taken and stood as follows:

Bates—Yes.
Breitenbach—No.
McDonnell—No.
Wagnon—Yes.
Hotz—Yes.

The ordinance was therefore declared passed and ordered to print.

Met With Painful Accident.

Stephen Duhring, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Duhring, met with a painful accident while at play in the school yard and has been confined to his home all this week.

In climbing over a platform built by the school boys in their play and from which many nails protruded, he slipped and fell running one of the nails into his leg. The sharp wire tore his flesh in an ugly manner leaving a gaping wound several inches in length. Through the skillful treatment of his mother, who drew the wound together, the little fellow is now on the road to recovery.

Will Return from Europe.

Miss Riensch who went to her old home in Germany some months ago, is to return to Sonoma and take up her residence again with her sister, Mrs. M. Clewe. She has engaged passage for this month on one of the big liners from Bremen and is expected to arrive here some time during the month of September. Although surrounded by sisters and brothers in her old European home, Miss Riensch is homesick for the beautiful Sonoma valley and her relatives here.

GOLD CLAIMS FOR SONOMA MEN.

H. H. Granice and Dr. Thomson Consumate Mining Deal in Nevada.

H. H. Granice and Dr. A. M. Thomson has returned from Hawthorne, Nevada, this week where they have taken up four mining claims which give great promise. The Bodie "Miner" has the following to say in regard to the deal:

"A mining deal was consumated at Hawthorne last Thursday whereby Pete Hansen and H. S. Christensen disposed of a group of placer and quartz claims situated on Lappan Creek and Meadows in the Mount Grant District. The purchasers were H. H. Granice, Dr. Fred F. Sprague, Dr. A. M Thomson and W. G. Bradbury. The placer claims of which there are four are remarkably rich and prospect from the grass roots down to bed rock. The ground was thoroughly prospected by the purchasers before closing the deal, and it is a conservative estimate to say that the forty acres of placer ground, most of which can be worked with the water from the numerous large flowing springs which were acquired by the purchase, contains many thousands of dollars in placer gold. The new owners of the property will commence work immediately. Much excitement prevails in Hawthorne and other nearby towns over the rich developments made on the Lappan Creek and a big rush to the mines has already set in."

Will Excavate For the Board of Trade.

Somewhere in the prehistoric strata of Sonoma lies the remains of an extinct Board of Trade. Such is the findings of the Sonoma Valley Woman's Club who has appointed a committee to act as paleontologists and excavate for the fossils.

The ladies are anxious to determine if the gentlemen of that once progressive body will send out the 5,000 copies of literature compiled by Mrs. C. G. Murphy, or if they will let them take the iniative in the matter. They wish to distribute the advertising matter throughout the East where the beauties of Sonoma Valley are bound to attract attention.

Passed as a Juror in the Halsey Case.

Edward Skahan, formerly of Glen Ellen but now in the grocery business in San Francisco, was passed as a juror in the Halsey case for which talesmen have been selected this week. Skahan said he had no opinions, and being unbiased would like men in his frame of mine to try him in a like emergency. He was therefore passed. The Skahans moved away from this valley a couple of years ago and opened a grocery store near the Presidio in San Francisco. Since the fire they have been prospering.

Off With a Hunting Party.

Mr. and Mrs. Searcy, of Martinez, and Miss Lydia Culberson left Friday last with a hunting party for the Santa Cruz mountains where the men folks will go after big game and the ladies will enjoy a delightful outing in this picturesque country. They will stop at Gilroy and from there go into the mountains. Mrs. Searcy is the wife of the tax collector of Contra Costa county, and Miss Culberson, her sister, is the efficient bookkeeper at Lewis & Cummings.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucuous lining of the Eustachian Tube When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperiect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Ordinance No. 90.

An Ordinance to regulate and license the business of selling or giving away of intoxicating liquors within the corporate limits of the City of Sonoma, providing for the revocation of such licenses, providing the penalty for a violation of this Ordinance, and to repeal Sections 1, 2 and 3 of Subdivision III of Article IX of Ordinance No. 68 of the City of Sonoma.

The Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma do ordain as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person, firm, partnership, association or corporation to commence, engage in or carry on the business of selling or giving away any spirituous, vinous, malt, alcoholic, fermented, distilled or mixed liquors in less quantities than one pint, to be drunk on the premises where sold, in any saloon, bar, inn, hotel, tavern, store, drug store or other places within the corporate limits of the City of Sonoma, without having first procured a license therefor.

Section 2. No license called for herein or renewal of any license shall be issued except on the order of the Board of Trustees, duly passed and entered on the minutes.

Section 3. The application for a license or a renewal of a license shall be by a petition signed by the applicant, which shall state the place where and the building in which the applicant desires to commence, engage in or carry on such business, and must be accompanied by the affidavit of the petitioner, stating that he will conduct an orderly and decent place and will comply with all the laws of the State of California and the Ordinances of the City of Sonoma, relating to the business of selling or giving away such liquors as aforesaid or keeping such place; that he will not at any time during the period covered by such license sell, furnish or give away, directly or indirectly, any intoxicating liquors to habitual drunkards, to those addicted to the inordinate use of such liquors, to Indians or minors under the age of eighteen years, or to any person evidently in an intoxicated condition; that he will not allow such persons or any of them to remain in his said place of business and will not permit any person under eighteen years of age to enter, loiter or remain therein or engage in any game therein, and will not permit any female to loiter or remain in his said place of business, and that he will close up his said place of business at eleven o'clock P. M. on each night during the year, nor open the same again during such night.

Section 4. Every such petition and affidavit shall also be accompanied by a certificate signed by at least six persons who are owners of real property in said City of Sonoma and who reside within one fourth of a mile of such proposed place, mentioned in the petition, setting forth that the petitioner for a license is a person of good moral character and a suitable and proper person to carry on and conduct such a place and that no person will suffer injury or damage thereby.

Section 5. No license shall issue, in any case, until such petition, affidavit and certificate have been filed with the Clerk, passed upon and approved by the Board of Trustees and the license ordered issued by said Board.

Section 6. Every person, firm, partnership, association or corporation to whom a license shall be ordered issued, shall before receiving the same, or being entitled to commence or carry on business thereunder, pay to the Marshal of the City of Sonoma a semi-annual license fee of Sixty Dollars, in advance, and no license shall issue for a shorter term than six months; and such license shall be dated the day the same is ordered issued by the Board, and the same shall begin to run from the date thereof.

Section 7. No license issued under the provisions of this Ordinance shall be transferable or be a license for any place except the one designated in the petition and described in the license. No rebate shall, under any circumstances or conditions, be granted to any person for any portion of any unused license; provided, that upon consent of the Board of Trustees first obtained, the place of business may be changed to any other location in said city.

Section 8. Every application for a change of the place of business shall be made in the same manner as upon an original application for a license, as hereinbefore required, and the same procedure shall be had thereon by the Board.

Section 9. All papers required in the case of each original application for a license, each renewal and each change of the place of business, shall be prepared subject as to form, substance and sufficiency thereof, to the approval of the City Attorney, and be approved by him, and all such papers shall be typewritten or printed.

Section 10. The Board of Trustees may refuse to issue or renew a license for such reasons as may seem satisfactory to them, and their action in such case shall be final.

Section 11. The Board of Trustees may also, on written notice signed by the President of the Board and served upon the holder of a license by the Marshal, require him to appear before the Board not less than five days from the date of such service, at a time specified in such notice, and show cause, if any he have, why his license should not be revoked, and may revoke any license for any of the causes, to-wit: violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance; the employment or frequent presence in the place of business affected of any female, or females, minors under eighteen years of age, vagrants, intoxicated or disreputable persons, the allowance of gambling or dancing in the place of business affected; disorderly conduct or disturbance of the peace, arising in such place of business; or the loud or continuous playing of a musical instrument or instruments, disturbing the peace of the immediate neighborhood, is hereby declared to be a good cause for revoking any license; the selling or giving away of intoxicating liquors to habitual drunkards or those addicted to the inordinate use of intoxicating liquors, after receiving written notice from the City Marshal not to do so; the keeping open his place of business after eleven o'clock at night; or that the person affected is in any manner conducting his business in violation of any Ordinance of the City of Sonoma, or has failed in any respect to keep any promise made in the affidavit accompanying his application for a license; or for any other cause that may convince the Board of Trustees that the party in question is not a suitable person to conduct such a business.

Section 12. The form of license to be issued hereunder shall substantially conform to the following:

"Sonoma, Cal., ... 190 ...

"This is to certify that for the sum of "$60.00 by him paid to the Marshal of the "City of Sonoma is "hereby authorized to conduct and carry "on the business of selling or giving away "of intoxicating liquors in less quantities "than one pint to be drunk on the premises where sold, and to keep, conduct and "carry on a saloon, drinking house, or "liquor store within the corporate limits "of the City of Sonoma, on street, "in the building owned by "for the period of six months from the "date hereof, but this authority is at any "and all times subject to revocation by the "Board of Trustees of the City of Sonoma, "as prescribed in Ordinance No. 90.

"This license is not transferable nor is "the same a permit to carry on said business aforesaid in any place except the "one designated herein; except that the "place of business designated herein may "be changed to any other location in said "City of Sonoma, upon the consent of the "Board of Trustees first obtained, as prescribed in said Ordinance No. 90.

"Issued under Ordinance No. 90, by order of the Board of Trustees of the City "of Sonoma.

"..... "Marshal of the City of Sonoma."

Section 13. The business of selling intoxicating liquors in any quantity less than one pint where the same is to be drunk on the premises where sold, shall be dealt with as a separate business from any in which the owner or proprietor thereof may be engaged, nor shall a stock of liquors enumerated in Section 1 hereof, be in any wise considered to be a part of the general stock carried by any grocer or owner of any other business. Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to require a liquor license from druggists for selling liquors in quantities of not less than one pint for strictly medical purposes, or when kept and used in compounding medicine.

Section 14. The place of business designated in each license issued hereunder is hereby defined to be and shall be construed to include all the premises rented or owned or under the control of the person conducting business under such license, and the provisions of this ordinance shall apply to every part of such premises.

And it shall be unlawful for any minor under the age of eighteen years to enter or remain, or for any female to loiter or remain, in any restaurant or eating place connected or communicating with any saloon.

Section 15. No person under the age of eighteen years shall enter or visit, and no person under the age of eighteen years and no female, shall loiter or remain within any place where intoxicating liquors are sold or given away in less quantities than one pint to be drunk in or on the premises where sold, or engage in any game therein and the proprietor or keeper of any such place shall not permit any such person under the age of eighteen years to enter or visit, or any such person under the age of eighteen years or any female to loiter or remain therein or engage in any game therein.

Section 16. Any person violating any of the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the city jail until said fine is paid, not exceeding one day for each one dollar of such fine in case such fine is not paid, or by imprisonment in the city jail not exceeding one hundred days or both. And every day of the continuance of such offense shall be deemed and taken as a new offense.

Section 17. Sections 1, 2 and 3, of Subdivision III, of Article IX, of Ordinance No. 68, of the city of Sonoma, and all ordinances and parts of ordinances in conflict with this Ordinance are hereby repealed.

Section 18. Nothing in this Ordinance shall interfere with any unexpired liquor license in the city of Sonoma issued under any previous ordinance, and all such licenses shall continue in force until the expiration of the time for which they were issued.

Section 19. This Ordinance shall be published according to law and shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval and publication.

THE GREAT WRITERS.

Ideas and Inspiration Taken by One Author From Another.

BUT GENIUS BORROWS NOBLY

The Crude Ore Is Refined and the Raw Material Fashioned Into a Thing of Beauty—Shakespeare as a Most Brilliant Example.

Our great writers are not great robbers. Literature is not a repository of stolen goods. What seem like stealings by the steel pen are rather the output of the lapidary or a reissue of the mint or, better still, the borrowings from a bank repaid with interest. "It is wonderful," says Charles Reade, "how genius can borrow." "All literature," remarks Oliver Wendell Holmes, "lives by borrowing and lending," and, he adds, "A good image is like a diamond, which may be set a hundred times in as many generations and gain new beauties with every change." This is not a question of originality. "The lighting a candle at a neighbor's fire," observes Dean Swift, "does not affect our property in the wick and flame." "Genius borrows nobly." The transference is often a transmutation. For brass, the borrower brings gold, and for iron, silver, and for wood, brass, and for stones, iron. The crude ore is refined and the raw material fashioned into a thing of beauty.

It has been pointed out by Mr. Huth in his "Life of Buckle" that there is a kind of pedigree in literature. Dante avows his indebtedness to Virgil, as the latter himself was under obligations to Homer.

Ariosto owes much to Virgil, and Spenser borrows frequently from Ariosto. Spenser's "Faerie Queene" gave birth to Fletcher's "Purple Island," and this to Bernard's "Isle of Man," and this in turn to Defoe's "Robinson Crusoe" and Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress"—all like so many blossoms rising from the one stem.

Shakespeare has been called "the great Warwickshire thief," so inveterate is his borrowing habit. He invaded literature like a Napoleon and brought back the rarest art treasures to enrich and beautify his verse. One is surprised to learn that our dramatist has no original plots, that he has given to poetry no new rhythm or stanza and that "he ran not only in the old road, but in the old ruts." His "As You Like It" is taken from an old romance. The characters of his "Julius Caesar" are old Romans taken from Plutarch. But what borrowing! Dry bones are turned into living men. The commonest materials are taken into the lambent flame of his genius and transmuted into airy beauty.

Milton, too, is a free borrower. It is this fact, indeed, that makes his verse so rich in learned reminiscence and so gorgeous with "barbaric pearl and gold." He owes much to Shakespeare. Some critics think Milton's Eve is borrowed from Shakespeare's Miranda. In the "Taming of the Shrew" occurs the line:

As morning roses newly washed in dew.

While Milton in "L'Allegro" speaks of—

Fresh blown roses washed in dew.

Milton is a very mine to many. Pope is his debtor. Milton's "Smoky Sorceress"—a woman to the waist and fair, but "ending foul in many a scaly fold voluminous and vast"—is made to say, "They call me sin and for a sign portentous hold me; but, familiar grown, I pleased and with attractive graces won the most averse." Pope sings:

Vice is a monster of so frightful mien
As to be hated needs but to be seen;
But seen too oft, familiar with her face,
We first endure, then pity, then embrace.

Tennyson must have had in mind Milton's

Hanging in a golden chain
This pendent world

when he wrote:

The whole round world is every way
Bound by gold chains about the feet of God.

Tennyson, indeed, derives much of his exquisite imagery and felicitous phrasing from authors whose names, even, many literary men do not know.

Pope borrows his "Vital Spark" idea from an old poem by Thomas Flatman.

Byron gets his "Eagle Feather" image in his "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers" from Aeschylus, who flourished in the fifth century before our era.

Coleridge owes his "Ode to Mont Blanc" to a German poem by Friedrich Brown.

Bishop Ken is indebted for his thought in "The Evening Hymn" to Sir Thomas Browne in his "Colloquy With God."

In his own characteristic manner Rudyard Kipling has met the question of unconscious thievery with a bit of verse which commences:

When 'Omer smote 'is bloomin' lyre
'E'd 'eard men sing by land and sea,
And wot 'e thought 'e might require
'E went an' took the same as me.

Let Shakespeare's lines close this paper:

I'll example you with thievery:
The sun's a thief, and with his great attraction
Robs the vast sea; the moon's an arrant thief,
And her pale fire she snatches from the sun;
The sea's a thief, whose liquid surge resolves
The moon into salt tears; the earth's a thief
That feeds and breeds by a composture stolen
From general excrement; each thing's a thief.

Galiano's Quinine Hair Tonic.

Joe Galiano, at First Street East, Pinelli building, has introduced into Sonoma a hair tonic, called Quinine Tonic, which is a wonderful remedy for the prevention of baldness. Mr. Galiano has had many years experience under a first-class physician in Europe. A great number of cases of baldness are caused by indigestion, and not as is presumed, by a disease of the scalp. It is not claimed that Quinine Tonic will grow hair on a bald head, as a number of fake tonics are advertised to do, but it is claimed and guaranteed that Quinine Tonic will stop the hair from falling out, and if used twice a week will clear the head from dandruff which will not return as long as the tonic is used. Quinine Tonic is composed of the five following articles: Pure Alcohol, Quinine, Sulphur, Glycerine and Tumeric. If the Tonic is used and not found as represented, Galiano will refund the money. The Quinine Tonic will also save the trouble of shampooing the hair. This Tonic is for sale at both drug stores in Sonoma.

LITERARY LOG ROLLING.

How Some Famous Authors Sought to Advertise Themselves.

The examples cited by Francis Gribble in his article on "The Comedy of Literary Log Rolling" in the Strand Magazine arouse some suspicion as to their absolute authenticity, but are amusing enough whether true or not. Sainte-Beuve increased the circulation of his books by insisting upon fighting a duel in the rain with an umbrella over his head. Gerard de Nerval used to be seen in the streets of Paris leading a lobster by a string. Mme. Krudener, the author of "Valerie" and the friend of Alexander I. of Russia, made the fortune of her novel by calling at all the Paris shops and asking for various articles of dress "a la Valerie." Of Victor Hugo and of Alexandre Dumas the elder the following stories are told:

Nor was the great poet ashamed to roll his log even at a funeral. He seized the opportunity at the obsequies of one of his own sons. It happened that on the way to the cemetery the procession passed a traveling menagerie, and the lions, for whatever reason, stopped roaring just as Victor Hugo was in front of their cage. His companion, a minor poet named Pelleport, drew his attention to the fact. "Master," he whispered, "the lions recognize you and hush their voices. The king of beasts is silent in the presence of the king of men." Victor Hugo bowed and turned the matter over in his mind. Then, after meditation, he said: "Pelleport, that was a happy thought of yours. Couldn't you write something about it?" And Pelleport wrote a sonnet about it, and the fame of the master stood on a higher pinnacle than ever.

And finally there was the case of Dumas, of whom it may almost be said that his whole life was an advertisement. Some one once said of him that his vanity was such that he was capable of getting up behind his own carriage in order to demonstrate that he had a negro footman in his service. He certainly did many things almost as absurd as that in his restless pursuit of reclame. One of his delights was to clothe his noble porportions in a uniform and to embellish the uniform with decorations to which he was not entitled. He even went so far as himself to design the uniform in which he fought—or, rather, did not fight, for he arrived after the fighting was all over—in Garibaldi's army, and he achieved a tremendous advertisement by conducting a well known actress to a court ball to which she had not been invited. He got another advertisement by allowing himself to be sued for nondelivery of a feuilleton. He was utterly in the wrong, and he lost his case, but he kept the court in roars of laughter while he explained his literary methods and the nature of the distractions which had interfered with the fulfillment of his contract. But the best of all his advertisement was attained when the announcement appeared that M. Alexandre Dumas would write the last chapter of a forthcoming romance sitting in a shop window, for all the world to see how it was done. One can understand that that sort of advertisement would suit the authors who are also interested in the sale of hair restorers. They almost owe it to the public to exhibit themselves in this way, killing two birds with a single stone. But for the author of "Monte Cristo" to do it was surely the ne plus ultra of the comedy of log rolling.

The Hanging of Pictures.

A woman bought three pictures in a Fifth avenue art store.

"Shall I send some one up to hang them?" asked the dealer.

"I—I don't know," hesitated the woman, who had already exceeded her allowance in buying the pictures. "How much extra will it cost?"

"Not a cent," the dealer assured her. "In the case of any important sale we prefer that one of our men superintend the hanging of the picture. That insures justice for the painting. Without meaning any disrespect for our customers, I must say that not one person in a hundred who has had no special instruction in art can take a picture home and place it in an advantageous position. A man who has been trained to that business, on the other hand, can tell at a glance where to hang it and all the others in the room so that each will bring out the best points of all the rest."—New York Sun.

His Luggage.

"Ticket," said the collector as he opened the door of a carriage in which sat a man who looked as if he was anchored to his seat. The man handed over the required pasteboard, which was duly inspected. Then, looking around, the collector said, "Is there another gentleman in the carriage?" "No." "Is that other portmanteau yours, then, too?" "Other portmanteau?" "Yes, on the floor there by the other." "Those," said the traveler, with dignity, are my feet."—London Globe.

Well Trained.

Old Lady (improving the occasion)—Ah, my poor man, you would not be in this position if you had received an early training in some trade or calling. Tramp—Don't you tork too sudden about wot you don't know nothin' about, missus. No trainin', indeed! Wy, I was in prison afore I was fourteen.—London Mail.

Tactfully Put.

He—Who is that plain lady? She—That is my mother. He—Oh, I beg pardon! I didn't notice the resemblance.—London Opinion.

If you would be a good judge, hear what every one says.—Portuguese Proverb.

A CLEAN WATCH

means good time to you for years to come. True economy in a time-piece lies in cleanliness. The delicate parts doing indiscribable work will soon wear themselves to ruin, destroy their high finish and perfect fit when running in accumulating dirt and rancid oil. It will cost you nothing to let us examine it.
